Contributions: For each section in hematology, the Roadmap Task Force appointed one or two editors. Together, the Roadmap Task Force and section editors drafted and reviewed a more detailed framework of 60 "subsections" of groups of diseases and conditions. Section editors selected experts from their various fields to contribute as subsection editors or authors. Each section and subsection adapted the same basic format. Draft texts and figures were discussed by the Roadmap Task Force and section editors during three meetings between October 2014 and March 2015. After that, sections were reviewed by the Roadmap Task Force, the EHA board, and a selection of experts. The final draft was sent for consultation to stakeholders such as national hematology societies, patient organizations, hematology trial groups, and other European organizations in, for example, overlapping disease areas. All comments were discussed and integrated before submission of the manuscript to this peer-reviewed journal. In all, about 300 European hematologists and top experts were part of the generation of the Roadmap.
