

Haematologica
HAEMATOL/2016/150839
Version 1

The higher prevalence of missense mutations in hemophilia B compared to hemophilia A could be important in determining a milder clinical phenotype in patients with severe haemophilia B

Daniela Melchiorre, Silvia Linari, and Giancarlo Castaman

Disclosures: No support was received

Contributions: MD and SL performed research and wrote the manuscript, GC supervised the study